Teresa and John Tran threw the glamorous wedding of their dreams at Vibiana in downtown Los Angeles. The Catholic ceremony took place in front of the former cathedral's striking white marble altar. Teresa said her vows in a long-sleeved Ines Di Santo gown that featured semitransparent lace through the bodice and sleeves, and an opaque skirt that hugged her figure from the waist down. For his part, John kept his look modern yet classic, wearing a tuxedo that featured white pin dots covering his blue jacket. The black-tie ceremony transitioned into the reception as the lighting shifted from the romantic blush pink to a deep purple that indicated the partying to come. White roses spilled from vases and onto the dining tables, with gold leaves scattered below the buds, complementing the gold dining chairs. John and Teresa made their mark on the dance floor in more ways than one. A monogram designed by the couple was emblazoned on the floor as the two performed their choreographed first dance. Though John is a dentist, sweet treats were abundant throughout. Lemon meringue tarts, chai-tea doughnuts and more were offered, along with the couple's signature "Penicillin" cocktail, a nod to Teresa's work as pharmacist. As the evening came to a close, it was clear that their wedding foreshadowed a happy life for Teresa and John.
